

May 27 366

Emperor Prospus was executed in 367/368. His relative Marcellus then tried to make himself emperor, but had just as little luck. The Tervingi then tried to return home, though they still considered themselves allies not enemies of Rome. But on their march back to the Danube they were waylaid by Roman troops without bloodshed and at first entered in various Thracian cities.

EUNAPIUS tells us that the King of the SCYTHIANS demanded back those noble warriors.

Valens, who was bloody revenge on the followers of his enemy, had not the slightest intention of sparing Bartsoris and did not hand over the captives. They were never heard of again.

366

Vandals were involved in the revolt of PROCOPIUS and until 369 Emperor VALENS waged war successfully against the Vandals led by ATHANARIC

1912 Dates J-BK

366-384 (reigned)

St. DAMASUS I was 37th Pontiff
He succeeded LIBERIUS.

Antipope was URSINUS (366-367)

366-384

37th Pope - ST DAMASCUS I

Spain, (Rome?). One of the most learned & zealous popes of Christian antiquity. He called St. Jerome to Rome, who at his request made his famous translation of the Holy Scripture, called the VULGATE. In a synod at Rome he condemned the errors of MACEDONIUS, three years before the Council of Constantinople ( II. General Council, held at Constantinople A.D. 381 ) and conferred by his sanction the title "ecumenical" upon it. The creed of the Council of NICE was enlarged at this council

Visigoths were involved in the revolt of Procopius

Chalons-sur-Moselle, city in north France was site of Romans' defeat of fierce Germanic tribesmen
the ALAMANNI.

DAMASOS Pope. Social & political influence became a feature of papal elections